As part of his 15th annual district-wide farm tour, U.S. Congressman James P. McGovern (MA-02) visited World Farmers in Sutton on Thursday.

The mission of these tours is to hear about the challenges local farmers are facing and highlight the quality fruits, vegetables, dairy products and more produced in Massachusetts' Second Congressional District.

According to a Twitter post from after the visit on Thursday afternoon, Congressman McGovern was impressed by what he saw in Sutton.

“If you’re willing to work hard & contribute to your community, there’s a place for you in America,” Congressman McGovern wrote. “That’s why I’m inspired by @WorldFarmersINC in Sutton, which provides land to more than 100 immigrant & refugee farmers who are keeping folks fed & sharing their culture through food. Our community wouldn’t be the same without them.”
